

The Suspects

Andrea Lancaster

Andrea is a sweet and mild-mannered woman. She only arrived in the city about a year ago, and has not made many friends yet. She is quiet and serious most of the time, and spends her days working in insurance.

Karen Rouse

Karen is an attorney and brags some of the city's most prestigious citizens as her clients. She is serious and stern, and going up against her in court is a harrowing experience for even the most seasoned legal professional!

Betty Lofts

Betty is an introvert. Upon meeting her, most people first assume that she's a snob, but this is not the case. When approached, Betty loves to embark on deep conversations, but most people leave her alone. She works as a massage therapist in one of the city's top sports rehabilitation centers. She loves to travel, and travels internationally at least three times a year.

Frank McClean

Frank is dashing good looking and a bit of a playboy. His tousled hair and ripped jeans make women swoon. He uses his looks to his advantage, although he is also one of the most genuine people you could meet. He is always at the hottest parties and is incredibly photogenic, which comes in handy when the newspapers run pictures of him in the society section.

Thomas Waverley

Thomas is a jeweler and enjoys his job immensely. His friends enjoy gems and jewels for Christmas each year, and he loves sharing his wealth. But get on his bad side and look out! Thomas has a lot more pull than first impressions suggest, and once crossed, Thomas is a fierce adversary. He loves the finer things in life, and is a self-proclaimed epicurean.

Max Lapelle

Max is every bit a distinguished gentleman, and a bit of a mystery. He is new to the city and not a lot is known about his past. He will never be caught without his three-piece suit on, and boy, does he make it look good! He has been compared to James Bond, and is just as popular with the ladies as the screen icon.