

The Suspects

SHOT IN THE DARK
MYSTERIES.COM

Regina Blakely

The newest wife of millionaire and business tycoon Grant Blakely, Regina is younger than her new husband, which has started tongues wagging about her designs on the older Grant Blakely. The term "Gold Digger" has been whispered by more than one woman from her Mint Julep! Confident with a slightly intimidating air of entitlement, Regina is fashionable and poised, and her extremely large hat and beautifully tailored dress have ensured that she has been photographed often at the derby today.

Clara Blakely

Daughter of millionaire and business tycoon Grant Blakely and new step-daughter of Regina Blakely, Clara is a socialite and enjoys the spotlight. Having grown up "A Blakely", her standards are high and her tongue is sharp. She views pretty much everyone else with an air of disdain, but truly believes that blood is thicker than water. This confident young woman seems off her 'game" today though, and many have wondered what could be throwing off the seemingly unflappable Clara Blakely.

SHOT IN THE DARK
MYSTERIES.COM

Melissa Turney

Melissa works in the barn with the horses in general, but lately she has only been focused on one horse in particular – a young thoroughbred named Gypsy Soul. She calls herself a “Horse Whisperer”, and while some insist there is no such career, those who have seen her at work can't deny that she has a way of communicating with the horses unlike anything they have ever seen! Melissa has a very strong moral compass and a calm, peaceful, reassuring demeanour, not only with the horses, but also with people. This quiet woman definitely sticks out among the rest of those here today in Millionaire's Row, as instead of a large hat and eccentric hat, she wears riding gear, as she has come straight from the stables after being accused of these murders!

Liza Masini

Movie Star Liza Masini is a pure Hollywood star. Liza has taken the world by storm since she appeared in a movie called “The Red Lilac”. Since, she has enjoyed a prosperous career and the media spotlight. Her loyal fans are eager to see her in the next installment of “The Red Lilac”. Liza has an air about her that only superstars seem to possess – confident and slightly mysterious.

SHOT IN THE DARK
MYSTERIES.COM

Tandy Borel

A bit of a mystery today in Millionaire's Row, Tandy clearly doesn't come from money, although her designer knock-off "Derby Dress" shows she is certainly trying to fit in with those in the upper echelons of society. If her attire didn't give her away though, her manner of speech would, as the moment she opens her mouth to speak, it's clear she has never seen the inside of a private school. Regardless, Tandy is friendly, if not a bit introverted, and was excited to watch the Derby from "so high up!" today.

Greta Delacroix

Greta is a woman who has lived with opulence her whole life, and it shows. She enters each room with an unparalleled sense of entitlement, and is quick to give orders to anyone she views as her subordinate. She and her husband, Dom Delacroix, have watched the Derby from Millionaire's Row since they were both young and are part-owners of one of the horses in today's race, a thoroughbred named 'A Stone's Throw'.

Sophie Windham

Daughter of the late Gregory Windham, Sophie is here in Millionaire's Row today rather reluctantly. After the sudden death of her parents in a car crash, Sophie inherited partial ownership of one of the horses racing today, a thoroughbred named A Stone's Throw. A humble young woman, Sophie had no desire to be involved in the races today, or the ownership of the horse, but friends convinced her to attend Millionaire's Row with her today to honour their late parents, who would have been thrilled to see their horse racing in such an esteemed derby. Sophie is kind and sweet, but is clearly uncomfortable here today in Millionaire's Row in her large-brimmed hat and dress.

Petunia Attridge

Petunia Attridge, nee Petunia Claxonbury, is a baroness and, while she is pleasant and polite, she leaves a decidedly tough impression that is unique to a woman of high breeding. While those who have enjoyed a conversation with her can attest that she is, indeed, pleasant enough, there is just something about her that makes one want to stay on her good side.

SHOT IN THE DARK
MYSTERIES.COM

Grant Blakely

Millionaire and international business tycoon Grant Blakely is a high-roller, socially influential and a down-right intimidating man. Grant Blakely excels at business, and has dedicated his life to building his legacy. Charismatic to a fault, people are quick to become enamored with Grant Blakely, but those who cross him quickly learn that to feel his wrath is to have everything one holds dear taken from them. Grant Blakely has recently married again for the third time. His new wife, Regina Blakely, is much younger than he is, which has been the source of much gossip, but also a cause of friction between Grant and his adult-aged children.

Adam Claxon

Bartender for Millionaire's Row, Adam Claxon has the job of serving everyone here today while making sure their Mint Juleps are just right. A man familiar with high society, Adam is professional and polite – someone who does his job and does it well enough that those with the wealth and status to win an invitation to Millionaire's Row hardly even notice he is there.

SHOT IN THE DARK
MYSTERIES.COM

Dom Delacroix

Husband of Greta, Dom Delacroix is one of the longest-standing attendees of the Derby. A man born into wealth, he and his wife are considered staples at every society event, and they always arrive in style. Dom is brash and loud and likes to punctuate his sentences by slapping the other person on the back, and more than a few men have ended up with mint julep on their bow ties after a conversation with Dom. He is a partial owner of one of the horses in today's race – a horse named 'A Stone's Throw'.